

Review 2:

Images do filter correctly when clicked on, however it would be maybe better if it was possible to filter multiple authors from the list and not just one. After unclicking an author, all of the authors show back up which is how it should work so good job. Modal works fine, but it would be better if the form showed up in the center of the screen and not on top as it's not that practical. Adding of image works fine, but for updating I need to exit the form and just pressing submit doesn't do anything which isn't great. Reset button works fine. Yes the data is uploaded from the server. New Image shows without a reload so that's completely fine. What I learned from this group is that we could have added a scroll down list of ID's to our update button which is really good for the user. On the other hand, I think the update function could have been done better and they could have incorporated choosing more authors to filter from the list. Another thing that doesn't work is when you write something in the search bar (for example an author's name) then you pick him from the list and unclick, the search bar doesn't filter him right away, which it should.

(There isn't much that doesn't work from the design part so screenshots would be pretty useless).
